

Syncing your Shelves to your Kobo

Now we finally get to the best part. Effectively, we tricked our eReader into believing the “Nasmans Library” is actually the Kobo store. You just have to do two things to do the synchronization, and better yet, you never have to mess with USB-cables/memory cards anymore.
First, make sure your eReader is connected to your Wi-Fi network. If it’s not, just press this icon:

Then, follow the instructions on screen to connect to your network.
Next, just press the sync button and wait for it to complete! Happy reading!
